

HOT WORDS IN THE SENATE.

THE NEW TAX BILL.
The Measure to be Introduced To-Day—The Street Cleaning Bill and Other Topics.

SENATOR MAHONE INTIMATES THAT SENATOR HILL IS A COWARD.

The Georgia Senator has intimated that the Senator from Virginia cannot insult him—Senator Cameron and others excused and shake hands in bad temper all around.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Sharp words were exchanged in the Senate yesterday, and something more than sharp words passed between Mahone and Hill. So far as he was able to do so and keep within parliamentary bounds, Mahone intimated that Hill had shamed what was foul, false, and worse, who was not a coward, wimp, and a scoundrel, and the Mr. Hill replied that the Senator could not insult him in the Senate, and that he himself could not insult Mahone there, with the passage of these words, the Senate made haste to adjourn.

The Senate had not been in good humor all day. Mr. Davies had early in the afternoon presented some exhibition of temper from Senator Pendleton, Harris, and Butler. Mr. Davies intimated that a prominent Democratic Senator had tried to bargain with Mahone for his vote. Mr. Harris indignantly denied that such a thing could be possible, and called upon Mr. Davies for his authority. So did Mr. Pendleton. Mr. Davies refused to give his authority, and when Mr. Butler sought to ask him again for it, and Mr. Davies refused to hear the question, Mr. Butler said, in rather loud tones, that Mr. Davies knew how to be both pert and impudent.

Not afterward Mr. Hill rose. As one of the committee of Democrats appointed by the caucus to arrange the Senate committees, he said that Mr. Mahone had been treated by that committee precisely as all of the other new Democratic Senators were. The committee allowed that Mr. Mahone had been a Democrat on all national questions, and therefore so treated him. But Mr. Mahone's vote was sought by a number of prominent ex-commissioners.

Mr. Hill said this with much less than his usual frankness, but in the course of his speech without any apology.

When he finished Mr. Mahone rose. He had been sitting with his eyes closed, listening while you spoke, and when Mr. Hill said he did not receive his vote on his bill, he stood at his desk, and apologized in low, slow intonation, taking his time over every word. No Senator on either side had made similar overtures to him for his vote.

He declined his responsibility for the introduction of the bill in the Virginia Senate.

He recited the responsibility of the Senate Committee of Appropriations, which was to appropriate $17,500 for the salaries of the Quarantine Commissioners, and the other amount of $60,000 for the office of the Commissioner.

Mr. Jacobs called attention to the law which requires appointments of Quarantine Commissioners.
